

STOMACH TROUBLES CHARMER IS $40 DUE TO ACIDITY IN BROADWAY CAFE, SWEARS WITNESS

No-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation, the result of excess acid, is taking place in the food contents of the stomach causing the formation of gas. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excessive secretion of acid and the fermentation of food. Such fermentation is unnatural and may involve harmful consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bismarck's Magnesia, perhaps the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as Bismarck's Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by gas and excessive acid.—Adv.

BUSINESS MATES TELL.

Former Furniture Man Attacks
Veracity of Associates Who Described "Stripped Party."

When a man's two business partners, his brother-in-law and the fiancée of his wife's sister break man's code of ethics by telling of his escapades with the attractive little telephone girl in one of Riverside Drive's most exclusive apartment houses, are they worthy of belief? This interesting question, growing out of a midnight dinner-rivalling in some respects the Seelye report, was raised to-day in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court by Brunson B. Monypeny, former furniture manufacturer and now a wealthy figure in automobile row.

No three men in the world would violate the unwritten law among men, Monypeny's lawyers told the court in asking that a decree of divorce recommended for Florence Barber Monypeny, who married him in 1913, should not be awarded to her.

The Monypeny's lived together happily until early last year. After that Monypeny's partners told the referee he neglected his business and began to brag of his feminine conquests.

Connor Huyler and Wilder Guttererson, partners of Monypeny in the firm of Guttererson, Monypeny & Huyler, and Edwin J. Barber, brother of Mrs. Monypeny, told the referee of confessions of guilt made to them by Monypeny. Guttererson is also engaged to Mrs. Monypeny's sister.

When the furniture business was at its height last spring, Huyler testified, Monypeny failed to appear at his office until late in the day and business, as a result, suffered. Huyler asked Monypeny for an explanation, and, he testified, got one—and it was more than he bargained for. Monypeny explained to his partner that he had attended a midnight supper party which Huyler laughingly told the referee was a "stripped party." The referee, inquired further and learned that "stripped party" was even more enigmatical than one where pieces bathing suits were worn.

"At this dinner," Huyler testified, "my partner told me two girls were present. Monypeny was the sole man. One girl asked for a kiss and got it. That made the other angry and a real fight started. The jealous young woman would not rest until she was kissed, and Monypeny found himself compelled to act as peacemaker."

Mrs. Monypeny heard about the party and a separation followed. Brother-in-law Barber told the referee that Monypeny came to his home in England to see if a reconciliation could be effected.

Monypeny first began to neglect business after he had paid a midnight visit to Bustanoby's, according to the testimony of Wilder Guttererson. Guttererson told his fiancée about Monypeny, she told her sister and later Guttererson told his prospective father-in-law.

"My partner told me the whole story of his trouble," Guttererson testified. "He said that one evening he was in Bustanoby's when he saw an attractive young woman. He called an attaché of the place and sought an introduction and the attaché was willing to arrange an introduction for $40. Monypeny paid it, he said, and became very attentive to the woman."

Guttererson told his partner to look and talked to him "like a Dutch uncle," he testified.

"I knew he was inclined to be a bit wild and I wanted to straighten him out," Guttererson said. "Later I met the girl and asked her to forget Brunson and she promised to do so, although she considered him the nicest young man she had ever met."

When the referee's report recommending a decree for the wife was presented to Justice Hotchkiss he declined to confirm it. In his brief to the Appellate Division Attorney R. P. Weeks, representing the husband, says:

"The stories of the witnesses Guttererson, Huyler and Barber are so improbable that they are entitled to scant consideration. It is inconceivable that the defendant should make an instantaneous confession of a liaison when simply asked by his partners why he came in late for business."

"That a man should indulge in such conduct as marked the 'stripped party' is difficult to believe, but that any man should relate the details of such a thing in which he confesses himself to be a participant and thereby subject himself to the contempt of his relatives and business associates is beyond understanding."

That is where the man's code part of it comes in.

HARTIGAN IS MADE A CITIZEN AGAIN

Policeman Who Lost Rights on Perjury Conviction Restored by Whitman.

ALBANY, Jan. 11.—Gov. Whitman restored citizenship to-day to John Hartigan, former patrolman of Manhattan, convicted of perjury by the Governor himself when District Attorney Hartigan is working in Ford's Long Island automobile factory.

Justice Samuel Seabury sentenced Hartigan on March 14, 1913, to not less than two years and six months. Gov. Glynn commuted the sentence on Dec. 9, 1914, on Mr. Whitman's recommendation, and on Dec. 22 Hartigan was released.

The sub-stations are in drug stores at No. 752 Union Street, No. 159 Seventh Avenue and No. 325 Sixth Avenue, all in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn. He had apparently calculated the time of his visit, for about a quarter of an hour after he left the regular store of registered mail appeared. No trace of him has been discovered and the Post Office Inspectors have but a meagre description.

HAY'S ARMY PLAN IS TO STRENGTHEN NATIONAL GUARD

Head of House Military Committee Differs With Wilson on Continental Force.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Plans to strengthen the National Guard instead of establishing a continental army as contemplated by the War Department, were proposed to President Wilson to-day by Chairman Hay of the House Military Committee.

Under Mr. Hay's plan the National Guard would get regular pay and a provision would be included in the army bill for taking it into the regular army in time of war. He said that at first this plan would bring only about 150,000 men into the regular army, but that he felt sure that within two years there would be 400,000.

The plan also proposes to increase the present regular regiments of infantry to war strength instead of adding new regiments as planned by the War Department. Mr. Hay thinks that would give the same increase in the regular army without adding to overhead charges.

A tentative army bill drawn up by Mr. Hay after conferences with War Department officials now includes the continental army feature.

President Wilson has endorsed the entire War Department plan, including the continental army. To-day's development was the first indication of a disagreement between the administration and the chairman of the Military Committee. It is understood that Mr. Hay's views were taken up at to-day's cabinet meeting.

It will be about six weeks before the House Committee will be able to put the army bill before the House.

RECEIVER FOR SMITH'S NEWARK LEATHER PLANT

Former U. S. Senator's Biggest Industry Has Liabilities of $1,065,261; Few Collectable Assets.

On petition of the Fidelity Trust Company, assignee of former United States Senator James Smith Jr., the J. H. Halsey & Smith, Limited, corporation of Newark was put into the hands of a receiver to-day. This was ex-Senator Smith's biggest industrial enterprise and long ranked as one of the leading leather manufacturing concerns of the United States.

Austen H. McGregor, a clothing merchant of Newark, was appointed receiver. Plans for the future of the corporation will depend on developments of the receivership and Senator Smith's efforts to rebuild his fortune.

The liabilities of the Halsey, Smith concern amount to $1,065,261 and the assets, on a book value basis, are $1,043,218. But the sum of $1,004,207 of the nominal assets is owed to the company by Senator Smith, who is himself bankrupt.

The receivership proceedings brought out the fact that in 1907 the State of New Jersey, because of non-payment of taxes on the part of the J. H. Halsey & Smith, Ltd., forfeited the charter of the corporation. Nevertheless the company continued business under its corporate name.

In the petition for a receiver the Fidelity Trust Company alleges that the $1,004,207 owed the Halsey, Smith concern by Senator Smith and the sum of $4,129 owed by others are uncollectable.

"The World's Greatest Player Piano Value"

This is the consensus of opinion of every one who has seen our new 1916 model Walters Player Piano. It is far superior to instruments offered elsewhere at much higher prices. We challenge comparison, and urgently request you to call and judge for yourself, the extraordinary value we are offering in

Our New and Up-to-the Minute 1916 Style
WALTERS
88-Note Player Piano
No Interest $395 No Extras
On Terms of '2 a Week

Price includes a beautiful Music Roll Cabinet and Bench to match, a Cover, 12 Rolls of Music of your own selection, and free delivery to your home.

Based on the value of a Player Piano upon the cost of its manufacture—plus the cost of selling it—plus a legitimate profit—we justify our claim that the Walters is the World's Greatest Player Piano Value on the Market.

Facts which substantiate our claim:

We have the largest output of any one piano factory in New York; therefore the per cent. cost of manufacture is distributed over the greatest number of pianos, making the cost of production of each piano less than the cost of any other make.

We are the manufacturers of every Piano and Player Piano we sell, therefore we eliminate the manufacturer's selling cost and the middleman's profit, which means a tremendous saving.

We sell more pianos and player pianos than any other house in this community, therefore our selling cost is the lowest.

We pay no commissions to teachers or professional musicians to boost our pianos, therefore we do not have to add that expense to the price you pay.

All the expense we save goes direct to you.
